Say Hello to Our Luminist Revision

Despite being in high end audio for nearly 30 years, Purist Audio Design is always looking towards the future. Therefore, it's with both humility and pride that we're coming forward to announce our new, Luminist Revision. Why Luminist? Luminist refers to an art movement that emphasized fine detail, where the strokes of paint were so exquisitely done as to render the brush's mark invisible. It emphasized depth, and light, and the beauty of the natural world.

The Luminist Revision embodies these qualities. Its improved design is made to connect you to the music, so that the artist's depth, the exquisite detail of their work touches your soul.

All lines possess increased EMI and vibration protection.

Luminist's improved engineering is based on our experience, and your feedback. For example, many of you have written in and asked for a more slender interconnect, and we have listened. The Luminist Revision interconnects are more slender, more flexible. Our speaker cables may be changed between bananas and spades without retermination.

However, we didn't "just" make the interconnects more slender. We wanted it done well, and set our engineers to task. Purist's made-in-the-U.S.A. quality represents engineering, not marketing. We improved quality from the inside out, creating a refined, tighter package across all lines. For example, we've improved our Ferox process and our fluids. We've improved our Triple Cryomag process. We've made the gold-plate on our RCAs uniform, and improved the metalurgy across all lines. We've improved the plugs for our high-end AC Power cables, and refined engineering in our XLRs.

Luminist Ethernet supports speeds of up to 100 gigabits per second, so it is only limited by the devices it is attached to.
